[BANCROFT, John.] (d. 1696.)

Henry the Second,||King of England;||With The||Death of Roſamond.||A||Tragedy.||Acted at the Theatre-Royal,||By||Their Majeſties Servants.||London:||Printed for Jacob Tonſon, at the Judges Head in||Chancery-lane near Fleetſtreet. MDCXCIII.

Condition: 4°, half brown crushed levant morocco, gilt edges. With the Marshall Clifford Leffertsand the Winston H. Hagen leather labels.

First Edition.

Collation: Title as above, [A1] (verso blank); Dedication to Sir Thomas Cooke, A2-[A3] (verso Prologue); Epilogue, [A4] (verso "Dramatis Perſonæ"); Text, B1-[H2], in fours, pp. 1-52.

The Dedication is by Will Mountfort and the Epilogue by John Dryden. The story of the play may be found in the English historians, and represents that part of the Princess's life which relates to Rosamond.

[BARNES, Barnabe.] (1569?-1609.)

The || Divils Charter: || A Tragædie || Conteining the Life and Death of || Pope Alexander the ſixt. || As it was plaide before the Kings Maieſtie, || vpon Candlemaſſe night laſt: by his || Maieſties Seruants. || But more exactly reuewed, corrected, and augmen- || ted ſince by the Author, for the more plea- || ſure and profit of the Reader. || [Printer's device.] || At London || Printed by G. E. for Iohn Wright, and are to be ſold at || his ſhop in New-gate market, neere Chriſt || church gate. 1607.

Condition: 4°, full dark green crushed levant morocco, gilt back and inside borders, edges gilt. The Arbury copy.

First Edition.

Collation: Title as above, [A1] (verso dedication); "Prologvs," A2; Text, A3-M3 (verso "Epilogus"); Blank leaf, [M4]. No pagination.

The author's name does not appear on the title-page but after the Dedication. This is the only play ever published by Barnes, who seems to have modeled it, somewhat, after Pericles. A parallelism has been noted in a passage in this play and one in "Cymbeline."

BEHN, Aphra.

Abdelazer, || Or The || Moor's Revenge. || A || Tragedy. || As it is Acted at his Royal Highneſs the || Duke's Theatre. || Written by M^rs. A. Behn. || [Printer's ornament.] || London, || Printed for J. Magnes and R. Bentley, || in Ruſſel-ſtreet in Covent-Garden, || near the Piazza's, 1677.

Condition: 4°, half brown crushed levant morocco, gilt top, green edges. The J. Philip Kemble copy with his autograph annotations on title-page. Some running head-lines are slightly cut into.

First Edition.

Collation: Title as above, [A1] (verso blank); "The Actors Names," [A2] (verso list of books to be published by J. Magnes and R. Bentley); Text, B1-[K4] (verso "Epilogue"), in fours, pp. 1-[72].

On the title-page following the name of Mrs. Behn, in a contemporary hand, is written the following: "'Tis a damn'd lye. This Tragedy was written by Chriſtopher Marloe & by him entit[led] Luſts Dominion, or ye Laſciv[ious] Queen. T."

This play is believed to be an alteration of "Lust's Dominion, or the Lascivious Queen," or "The Spanish Moor's Tragedy," written by Decker, Houghton, and Day, and mentioned in Henslowe's diary under the date of Feb., 1599-1600. It was not printed at the time, but is believed to be the drama published in 1657 under the title of "Lusts Dominion," etc., and printed in Hazlitt's Dodsley. Geneste observes that Mrs. Behn made some considerable changes in the fifth act, and improved the whole play. Abdelazer's avowal of his guilt in the last scene is an addition by Mrs. Behn.

[BEHN, Aphra.]

The || Rover. || Or, || The Baniſh't Cavaliers. || As it is Acted || At || His Royal Highneſs || The || Duke's Theatre. || Licenſed July 2d. 1677. || Roger L'Estrange. || London, || Printed for John Amery, at the Peacock, againſt || St. Dunſtan's Church in Fleet-ſtreet. 1677.

Condition: 4°, full calf, blind cartouches impressed on sides, gilt back, gilt top, edges gilt on the rough. The Winston H. Hagen copy with leather label.

First Edition.

Collation: Title as above, [A1] (verso blank); "Prologue," A2; Advertisements of books printed for John Amery, [A3] (verso "The Actors Names"); Text, [A4]-M1 (recto), in fours, pp. 1-83; "Epilogue," M1 (verso)-[M2] (verso blank), ending with "Poſt-ſcript," last three pages unnumbered.

This is a comedy in two parts, and both are very entertaining, and contain much business bustle and intrigue, supported with an infinite deal of sprightliness. The basis of them, however, may be found on a perusal of Killigrew's "Don Thomaso, or the Wanderer." It may be added that the incident of Blunt's falling through a trapdoor, when in bed at a courtezan's lodgings, is taken from a similar adventure of Lazarillo, at Imperia's house, in Middleton's "Blurt Master Constable," 1602; which again is borrowed from Boccaccio's "Decameron," Day 2, Nov. 6.

CONDITION: 4°, half dark blue crushed levant morocco, gilt top, edges sprinkled.

FIRST EDITION.

COLLATION: Title as above, [A1] (verso blank); Dedication, [A2]; "Prologue," by Mr. Dryden, [A3] (verso Epilogue); "Dramatis Perſonæ," [A4] (verso "Books Newly Printed for James Knapton"); Text, B1-[H4], in fours, pp. 1-56.

This play was not published until after the author's decease in 1689. The tragical part of it, particularly the catastrophe of Bacon, is borrowed from the well known story of "Cassius." The scene is laid in Bacon's camp in Virginia. The Prologue was written by Dryden; but, like Bayes might "serve for any other play as well as this," and had indeed seen service as the Prologue to the "True Widow," 1678, by Shadwell, but was prefixed to the "Widdow Ranter" by Dryden after his quarrel with Shadwell.

This piece is wholly political, the subject of it being entirely on the "Ship-money," one of the great points which occasioned the troubles of King Charles I. Several of the judges are attacked in it, under fictitious names, particularly Justice Hutton and Justice Croke, under those of Hortensius and Curvus Acilius; also Prynne who is introduced under the character of Prinner.

This play has been ascribed to Mrs. Behn. Though there is no author's name to this comedy, yet whatever difference there is between it and Richard Brome's "Mad Couple well Match'd" (of which it is little more than a revival), is the work of Mrs. Behn. It is in fact but Richard Brome's play with a new title. Kemble's autographic notation on the title-page is to that effect. The Prologue and the Epilogue were written by Lord Rochester; this is known by means of an advertisement at the bottom of the title-page to the "Triumphs of Virtue." The play was published at the price of one shilling.

Often presented in the reign of James I, and Dryden has spoken of this play in the following severe terms: "Uncorrect English, and a hideous mingle of false poetry and true nonsense; or, at best, a scantling of wit, which lay gasping for life, and groaning beneath a heap of rubbish." The first edition was printed in 1607.

This play was given with great success during the reign of James I, and after the Restoration. Dryden criticized it most severely as "a hideous mingle of false poetry and true nonsense," and Durfey speaks of its popularity as acted by Hart, and that "they were obliged to pass by and excuse the gross errors in the writings, and allow it amongst the rank of the topping tragedies of that time."

COKAYNE, Aston (1608-1684).

The || Obstinate Lady: || A New Comedy || Never formerly Publiſhed: || The Scene London. || Written by Sir Aston Cockayn. || [Printer's ornament.] || London, || Printed by W. Godbid for Iſaac Pridmore, and are to || be ſold at his Shop at the Sign of the Falcon beyond the || New Exchange in the Strand, 1657.

Condition: 4°, full calf, with the Bridgewater crest impressed on sides, sprinkled edges. The Bridgewater copy with bookplate, and John L. Clawson copy with leather label.

First Edition.

Collation: Title as above, [A1] (verso "Dramatis Perſonæ"); Prologue, A2; Text, B1-[K2], in fours, pp. 1-68.

Errors in Pagination: Pages 6 and 7 are unnumbered; 39 is misprinted 93; Sig. E3 is F3. Pages 10 and 11 are printed in smaller type.

This is the first edition, although unauthorized. Obtained without the author's knowledge, it was printed from a copy which was deficient in the Epilogue and last leaf, and was perfected by another hand. It was written in imitation of Massinger's "Very Woman," as may be observed in a comparison between the characters of Don Juan Antonio and Almira, in that comedy, and those of Carionil and Lucora in this. There is a tradition that the serving man, Jacque, was a study from life in the Ashborne district.

CONGREVE, William (1670-1729).

The || Old Batchelour, || A || Comedy. || As it is Acted at the || Theatre Royal, || By || Their Majesties Servants. || Written by Mr. Congreve. || [Four lines in Latin from Horat. Epiſt. I. Lib. II.] ||

London, || Printed for Peter Buck, at the Sign of the Temple || near the Temple-gate in Fleet-ſtreet, 1693.

CONDITION: 4°, half dark green pebbled morocco, gilt back with red leather label, gilt top. The Beverly Chew and the Marshall Clifford Lefferts copy with leather labels.

FIRST EDITION.

COLLATION: Title as above, [A1] (verso blank); Dedication to Charles Lord Clifford, A2; Commendatory poem by Tho. Southerne, [A3] (recto); Commendatory poem by J. D. Marsh, [A3] (verso)-[A4] (recto); Commendatory poem by Bevil Higgins, [A4] (verso)-a1 (verso "Prologue"); "Prologue spoken by Mrs Bracegirdle," [a2] (verso "Perſonæ Dramatis"); Text, B1-[H4] (verso "Epilogue"), in fours, pp. 1-[56].

This was Congreve's first play and was staged when he was only twenty-three years of age. Congreve states in the Dedication: "It is the first Offence I have committed in this kind, or indeed, in any kind of Poetry, tho' not the first made publick . . . When it was first written . . . Ignorance of the Town and Stage, would then have been excuses in a young Writer, which now, almost four Years experience will scarce allow of." Dryden pronounced it to be the best first play he had ever seen.

Though printed without any author's name, whatever was either spoken or sung in this masque was written by Sir William Davenant. The stage scene and machinery were invented by Inigo Jones. It was not reprinted in the Folio edition of Davenant's works, 1674. The music was composed by Louis Richard.

This is probably the piece which Pepys tells us that he saw in part at the Duke of York's theatre, September 11, 1667, and which he miscalled "The Ungrateful Lovers." He says that he sat by Beck Marshall, "whose hand is very handsome."

This tragedy, first printed in 4°, in 1620, and this second edition in 4°, in 1639, with the letters "T. D." on the title-page, has been ascribed to Thomas Barker. It was however probably written by Robert Davenport, having been enumerated with some other of his plays in a list of works that formerly belonged to the Cock-pit theatre. The letters "T. D." were perhaps printed by mistake on the title-page, in place of "R. D."

This is a translation of the pastoral written by Guarini on the occasion of the marriage of Charles Emanuel, Duke of Savoy, and the Infanta of Spain, with added verses of early date by John Denham.

The portrait of Guarini is engraved and signed by Cross. Lowndes says the full-page copper-plate on the verso of a2 is by Cross but it is unsigned.

FIRST EDITION.

COLLATION: Title as above, [A1] (verso blank); Dedication, written by John Donne, [A2]-[A3] (verso blank); "To The Reader," [A4]; Text, B1-I3, in eights, pp. 1-118; One blank leaf at end, [I4]. Leaf "To The Reader" should immediately follow the title-page. It is misplaced in this copy.

ERRORS IN PAGINATION: Sig. H3 is misprinted H2; p. 66 is 96.

The authorship of most of the poems is indicated by the initial "P" or "R" at the head of those written respectively by the Earl of Pembroke or Sir Benjamin Rudyerd. The volume also contains poems written by Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Edward Dyer, Carew, and others. Among them is the celebrated epitaph on the Countess of Pembroke, beginning:

> "Underneath this ſable Herſe,
> Lyes the ſubject of all Verſe."

The first six lines of this epitaph are commonly attributed to Ben Jonson. This first edition was edited by John Donne, the younger son of Dr. Donne, dean of St. Paul's.

"His Noble Numbers": Page 77 is unnumbered.

There are so many variants of the first edition that authorities are unable to tell which is the first issue.

Another imprint of the same date, known as the "Exon" issue, reads as follows: "London, printed for John Williams, and Francis Egelsfield, and are to be ſold by Tho. Hunt Bookſeller in Exon. 1648." Only four copies of this issue are known: that in the British Museum, the Corser, the Charles W. Clark, and the Charles Templeton Crocker copies.

Although no earlier edition is known, "The Hesperides" was licensed on April 29, 1640. "His Noble Numbers," so far as is known, was not published, except with "The Hesperides," and reference is made to it in line 28, page 397, as follows: "Part of the work remains; one part is past."

On the fly-leaf is the autograph of Dr. R. Farmer (1735-1797), the critic, and on the leaf of Dedication is the following in contemporary writing: "Lib. Tho. Hall S^t Jo. Oxon. 10bre 4. 1651."

This copy does not appear in the Hoe catalogue and presumably was acquired by Mr. Hoe after his catalogue had gone to press.

This tragedy is written chiefly in rhyme, but also mixed with both prose and blank verse. The author has taken no pains to adhere to historical truths. It was acted at the Duke's Theatre under the title of "Piso's Conspiracy," and was reprinted in 1676. This was Lee's first play.

There are no running head-lines.

The Prologue was written by Dryden who prefixed it to the play "The Widow Ranter," by Mrs. Behn. There is an allusion to Shakespeare in the "Epistle Dedicatory."

The scene lies in Alsatia, the cant name for White-fryers; the author found it necessary, in order to make clear the cant or gambler's language, to prefix a glossary to lead the reader through a labyrinth of uncommon and unintelligible jargon.

Errors in Pagination: Sig. V1 is Vv1; sigs. X1 and X2 are in Italics; sig. a3 is Aa3; m3 is l3; x3 is unnumbered; bb2 is Bb2; sig. gg is two leaves; sig. gg1 (repeated) is Gg1; nn1 is Nn1; nn2 is Nn2; oo1 is Oo1; oo2 is unnumbered; tt2 is tt3; xx1 is x1; xx2 is x2; xx3 is x3; yy2 is y2; yy3 is y3.

Comedies: Page 50 is misprinted 58; 59 is 51; 86 is 88; 153 is 151; 161 is 163; 164 is 162; 165 is 163; 189 is 187; 249 is 251; 250 is 252; 265 is 273; 276 is unnumbered.

Histories: Page 37 is 39; pp. 47 and 48 are omitted in pagination; p.

89 is 91; 90 is 92; pp. 101 and 102 are unnumbered; 69-102 are repeated; p. 86 (repeated) is 88; 165 is 167; 166 is 168; 216 is 218.
Tragedies: Pages 1-76 are omitted in pagination; fifteen leaves are without pagination except the second, sig. x6, which is numbered 77 and 78; p. 77 is 79; 78 is 80; 79 is 81; 80 is 82; pp. 99 and 100 are unnumbered; 101-108 are omitted in pagination; 157-256 are omitted in pagination; p. 279 is 259; 282 is 280; 308 is 38; 379 is 389; 399 is 993.
The following errors occur in the running head-lines:
Comedies: On pp. 37 and 38 read, "The Merry Wiues of Windſor," instead of "Two Gentlemen of Verona"; p. 121 reads, "Much adoe aboat Nothing"; p. 197 reads, "As yoa like it."
Tragedies: Pages 79 and 80 read, "The Tragedie of Troylus and Creſsida," instead of "Troylus and Creſsida."
The following errors are found in the present copy:
The catchword on p. 39, Comedies, reads "Sha. l" instead of "Shal." In the Tragedies, p. 307, the catchword is lacking; p. 322, the catchword and the first word on p. 323 are correct. In the earliest issues the first line on p. 323 reads, "And hell gnaw his bones"; p. 309, col. 2, line 21, reads, "He dis." This error is found in most copies.
In many places the name of an actor in the cast has been substituted for a character in a play:
In "Much adoe about nothing," Act IV, scene 2, p. 116, the names of Kemp and Cowley are substituted for Dogberry and Verges; and in Act II, scene 3, p. 107, the name Jack Wilson is used for the word "Musicke," to cover the singer of the song.
In "A Midsommer Nights Dreame," p. 160, the stage direction reads "Tawyer with a Trumpet before them." Tawyer was the name of one of the actors in the cast. In "Taming of the Shrew," p. 209, first column, line 2, the name "Sinckle" is substituted for the word "Player." In "All's well that ends Well," Act II, scene 1, pp. 234-235, the names, "Lord G," "L. G.," "Lo. G," and "Lo. E"; Act III, scene 2, p. 241, "French G.," "Fren. G.," and "Fren. E"; Act III, scene 6, pp. 243-244, "Cap. G," and "Cap. E," all stand for Robert Gough and William Ecclestone, two minor actors. In "The Third part of King Henry the Sixt," p. 158, column 1, reads, "Enter Sinklo and Humprey," instead of "Enter two Keepers," as in modern versions. The last page of "Romeo and Juliet," and pp. 277 and 278 of "Tragedy of Hamlet," which originally contained many errors, are in their revised forms in the present copy. An error found in most copies is on p. 309, column 2, line 21, of "The Tragedy of King Lear," which reads, "He dis," instead of "He dies."

Many of the plays are wholly undivided into acts and scenes; some are only partly divided; seven comedies, six histories, and four tragedies are completely divided.

The "Prologue" and "Tragedie of Troylus and Cresida" are without pagination and the play is omitted in the catalogue of contents. A delay in printing it was no doubt caused by trouble over the copyright, and in all probability it was entered after the catalogue leaf had been printed, and was not placed in the position first assigned to it, just after "Romeo and Juliet," but between the plays of "Henry the Eighth" and "Coriolanus," where it has a separate set of signatures and no pagination, except the second leaf, which is paginated 79 and 80, which pagination it would have had, had the play been entered in the original place assigned to it. This is common to all copies.

There are five different head-pieces, and three tail-pieces, all except one head-piece having been used by printers in other works.

The signatures are as follows: One leaf; A, eight leaves; A (repeated), B-Z, Aa-Bb, six leaves; Cc, two leaves; a-g, six leaves; gg, eight leaves; h-x, six leaves; ¶, ¶¶, each six leaves; ¶¶¶, one leaf; aa-ff, six leaves; gg, two leaves; gg (repeated)-zz, six leaves; aaa-bbb, six leaves.

The pagination runs as follows: Nine leaves without pagination; pp. 1-49, 58, 51-58, 51, 60-85, 88, 87-152, 151, 154-160, 163, 162-163, 162-163, 166-188, 187, 190-248, 251-252, 251-264, 273, 266-275, one blank page, pp. 277-303, one blank page, pp. 1-36, 39, 38-46, 49-88, 91-92, 91-100, one leaf without pagination, 69-85, 88, 87-164, 167-168, 167-215, 218, 217-232, one leaf without pagination, pp. 79-80, thirteen leaves without pagination, pp. 1-76, 79-82, 81-98, one leaf without pagination, pp. 109-156, 257-278, 259, 280-281, 280, 283-307, 38, 309-378, 389, 380-398, 993, one blank leaf.

The portrait is in the third state as shown by the single detached hair on the right hand side of the head, and the lines drawn from the white center of the eyes toward the right, the one on the right hand cutting the eyelid. The hair of the portrait has been slightly tinted brown, conforming with the tradition that such was the color of Shakespeare's hair. On the title-page in the contemporary handwriting of a former owner is: "Liber G. Spearman Dunelm. 1695." This is Gilbert Spearman of County Durham, who, in 1728, published "Inquiry into the Ancient and Present State of the County Palatine of Durham." From the Spearman family this copy of the Folio passed to the Sutton family of Elton, in the same county, and on the title-page is the autograph signature of "G Wm Sutton."

"In 1623 the first attempt was made to give the world a complete edition of Shakespeare's plays. Two of the dramatist's intimate friends and fellow-actors, John Heming and Henry Condell, were nominally responsible for the venture, but a small syndicate of printers and publishers undertook all pecuniary responsibility. Chief of the syndicate was William Jaggard, printer since 1611 to the City of London. . . .

"Jaggard associated his son Isaac with the enterprise. They alone of the members of the syndicate were printers. Their three partners were publishers or booksellers only. Two of these, William Aspley and John Smethwick, had already speculated in the plays of Shakespeare. . . . Edward Blount, the fifth partner, was an interesting figure in the trade, and, unlike his companions, had a true taste in literature. . . .

"The First Folio was printed at the press in the Barbican, which Jaggard had acquired of Roberts. Upon Blount fell the chief labour of seeing the work through the press. . . . Isaac Jaggard obtained formal license from the Stationers' Company to publish sixteen of the twenty hitherto unprinted plays that it was intended to include. The pieces, whose approaching publication for the first time was thus announced, were of supreme literary interest. The titles ran: 'The Tempest,' 'The Two Gentlemen,' 'Measure for Measure,' 'Comedy of Errors,' 'As You Like It,' 'All's Well,' 'Twelfth Night,' 'Winter's Tale,' '3 Henry VI,' 'Henry VIII,' 'Coriolanus,' 'Timon,' 'Julius Caesar,' 'Macbeth,' 'Anthony and Cleopatra,' and 'Cymbeline.' Four other hitherto unprinted dramas for which no license was sought figured in the volume, viz.

'King John,' '1 and 2 Henry VI,' and the 'Taming of the Shrew'; but each of these plays was based by Shakespeare on a play of like title which had been published at an earlier date, and the absence of a license was doubtless due to an ignorant misconception on the part either of the Stationers' Company's officers or of the editors of the volume as to the true relations subsisting between the old pieces and the new. The only play by Shakespeare that had been previously published and was not included in the First Folio was 'Pericles.'

"Thirty-six pieces in all were thus brought together. The volume consisted of nearly one thousand double-column pages and was sold at a pound a copy. From the number of copies that survive it may be estimated that the edition numbered 500. . . . There is no doubt that the whole volume was printed from the acting versions in the possession of the manager of the company with which Shakespeare had been associated. But it is doubtful if any play were printed exactly as it came from his pen. . . . As a specimen of typography the First Folio is not to be commended. . . . The misprints are numerous and are especially conspicuous in the pagination."—Sidney Lee, "A Life of William Shakespeare" (1912), pp. 315-320.

"The First Folio is intrinsically the most valuable volume in the whole range of English literature, and extrinsically is only exceeded in value by some half-dozen volumes of far earlier date and of exceptional typographical interest. The number of surviving copies exceeds one hundred and eighty, of which one-third are now in America. . . . Only fourteen are in a perfect state, that is, with the portrait printed (not inlaid) on the title-page, and the fly-leaf facing it, with all the pages succeeding it, intact and uninjured."—Idem. pp. 325-326.

Charles Lamb's criticism seems to be a fair one: "James Shirley claims a place among the worthies of this period, not so much for any transcendent talent in himself, as that he was the last of a great race, all of whom spoke nearly the same language and had a set of moral feelings and notions in common."
